Natural Highs—Healthy Alternatives to Drugs and Alcohol is an interactive, strengths-based educational program integrating traditional and alternative approaches to substance abuse prevention and intervention. The curriculum provides cutting edge information on brain chemistry and development, hands-on opportunities to learn healthy coping strategies for stress management, creative ways of accessing altered states of consciousness, and discussions about issues underlying substance abuse. Natural Highs is currently being offered at several high schools in Boulder and at Naropa University.

As a part of this Becoming a Love and Logic Parent class we are including New Vista's "Natural Highs Parent Night" where you can learn how to support your teen with a healthy, sober lifestyle. We often hear from parents that they are unsure how to begin conversations about drugs & alcohol with their teen. In this interactive presentation you will learn about the brain chemistry of drugs & alcohol and "Natural Highs Strategies" that support a healthy lifestyle for people of all ages. You are welcome to bring your questions and interests to the discussion.
